Alberta Faces Debt Problem, Says E. L. Gray

Serious Situation Confronts Government In Both Public and Private Obligations

Time For Revision at Hand.

Debt, both public and private, and unemployment, were two of the outstanding problems Alberta had to face at the present time, but the provincial government would have to show that it was prepared to deal more effectively with them in the future than it had in the past before it could hope to retain the confidence of the people of Alberta, declared E. L. Gray, provincial Liberal leader, in continuing the debate on the speech from the throne in the legislature on Monday.

MACKENZIE KING MAY JOIN TOUR WITH ROYALTY

Probability that Rt. Hon. Wm. Lyon Mackenzie King, prime minister of Canada, will accompany the King and Queen on their Trans-Canada visit, was indicated here Monday.

Although no definite announcement was made by members of the Royal Visit Committee, it was learned from other sources that it was almost certain that the King and Queen would be here June 2 with their Majesties.

It is expected that the Royal visit party will travel to Canada on June 1 and return by C.N.R.

If that present plan is carried out the party will come to the city via the C.N.R.

Four Escape Injury When Plane Upsets

BIRD'S HILL, Man., Feb. 13.—Four persons escaped injury when the plane in which they were flying from Regina to Bird's Hill on Saturday turned over when making a forced landing near tiny town, eight miles northeast of the Metropolis. The four were Prof. W. J. Waines, assistant professor of economics, University of Manitoba; Prof. G. W. Munro, B.C. and Bert Black.

Lack of gas necessitated a landing in which the skis landing gear struck a snowdrift, causing the ship to turn over.

Wealthy Backer Of Franco Is Harbinger Of Insurgent Victory

Shells Rain Again On Madrid: Spanish War Wages In Centre Areas

June March Leaves Observation Post In France For Burgos

BY DENNIS MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Juan March, one of the world's wealthiest men and heavy backer of the insurgents in Spain's civil war, has left his observation post in France and headed back toward Generalissimo Francisco Franco at no greater cost than the province is now paying him for relief and with much greater enthusiasm.

Mr. March, who has been charged to the government, Mr. Gray said, with misappropriation of funds from the Spanish Treasury, has come to the Throne without wondering what the people of Alberta

Chamberlain Says Government Is Keeping Close Watch

Why Tolerate Them?

The federal superintendent of insurance asks parliament to enact legislation to prevent small loan companies "imposing undue charges" on clients. In language which might be inappropriate in an official, what the superintendent wants is that parliament stop loan sharks preying on the unfortunate who go to them to borrow a few dollars to keep soul and body together, pay a doctor's bill or funeral expenses or meet some other emergency demand.

A bill to do this was introduced at last session but was left on the list of unfinished business when parliament prorogued. There was no indication of opposition from any group or member, and it will doubtless be put through at the present session. That is to be hoped, particularly if the bill is so worded that a "shark" once caught shall never be allowed to go into the loaning business again. Credit-mongers of that type are not needed in any country, and there is no reason why law officers should have to waste time trying to keep them within the bounds of law. The easier, cheaper and more effective way is to put them out of business once and for all when they are identified.

A Ship of Mystery

When the cruiser Devonshire dropped anchor at Minorca it started ripples of interest and wonder in all the capitals of Europe. Its mission apparently was to take aboard representatives of the Spanish Government and the Insurgents, and provide them with detached quarters, free from reporters and interruption, in which to talk about the surrender of the island to Franco—the last of the Balearic group not already in his possession or occupied by Italy.

What additional significance the visit of a British warship for this purpose may have, time will show. That it has some meaning other than a cordial desire to facilitate negotiations is fairly plain; since it would have been more consistent to let the insurgents and the Government make their own deal there as they are doing elsewhere.

Perhaps the call of the Devonshire was intended as a gentle reminder to Mussolini that the Balearic islands are not at his sole disposal or that of his man Franco. The group lies on the route from France to its African colonies. If a Fascist naval base is to be planted in the Balearics, France may plant another there.

So This Is "Sound Money"?

Claresholm municipal hospital district is to build a new hospital, with money loaned by the Dominion Government at 2 per cent. If money for such purpose is available to one district, it is presumably available to others also. And if municipal hospitals in smaller centres are to be built with cheap federal money, it may be supposed the cities can also get loans for their hospital requirements from the same source and on the same terms.

Hon. Charles Dunning insists that he is a "sound money" man. But, judged by the methods the public have been taught to associate with the term, he is not acting the part. It is a pity his particular brand of sound money policy was not in operation eight years ago when the general crash occurred.

With municipalities already getting 2 per cent money for self-liquidating projects, promised loans at the same rate for ordinary improvements, and offered 2 per cent money for low rental housing, the country is nearer to the goal of interest-free money for public capital expenditures than most money receivers can have expected it to be any time during the life of the present generation. If that is Mr. Dunning's interpretation of "sound money" policy, a lot of people belong to the sound money school who have not suspected it.

A Hundred More Taxpayers

Sales of confiscated property last year added $460,000 to the assessable value of taxable property in the city, and added an estimated $20,000 per year to the tax revenue the city will collect in future. Existing property-owning taxpayers, that is to say, will have that much less to pay because their number has been increased by more than one hundred.

The city itself is the largest Edmonton land-owner, and every lot and building it owns is exempt from taxes. All other exemptions put together make up only a small fraction of the city's exemption total, the taxes normally collectable from which other property owners have to pay. The one clear and certain hope the burgesses have of a reduced mill rate is based on the chance that this city-owned property may be restored to private ownership and thus taken off the exempted list.

Even the unprecedented inducements offered under the Dominion housing scheme have not resulted in this exempt property being bought and improved in any amount large enough to be practically important. Even last year's sales provide an illustration of what the re-transfer of this unproductive property to private ownership would mean; rather than effecting any actual gain in revenue to the city. For against the property sold must be placed the amount of property placed under caveat and thus marked as being non-revenue-producing.

If ten times the amount of city property sold last year could be sold this year, the effect upon civic revenue and the tax rate would be noticeable beyond doubt. There is little or no prospect of this happening unless a veritable house-building campaign gets under way when spring opens. And there is practically no prospect of that unless the city itself fathers a building project of some sort on a broad scale.

The property-owning taxpayer is therefore an interested party in the proposal of the city council to launch a building project under the housing plan. If this is done, he may reasonably expect his tax bill to be reduced as non-paying property comes on the tax list. Otherwise the $4 mill rate will have to stand.

Editorial Notes

Prime Minister de Valera is bringing in legislation to enable him to clamp down on the activities of the Irish Republican Army. His experience some years ago on the other side of the law will stand him in good stead in framing measures to curb the disturbances. With the English police hunting them on one side of the Irish Sea and the Irish police chasing them on the other, the bombers are in fair way to find they have bombed their way into jail.

Hon. H. H. Stevens says the Bren gun contract should not be sent to the public accounts committee because the committee might be partial. Doubt it would be. All parliamentary committees are, more or less. Since Mr. Stevens and Mr. Manion were on the public accounts committee, it could be no exception to the rule. If they were the only two men on the committee it would be the least qualified of any to claim freedom from partiality.

No Fireworks

The gloom and pessimism of journalistic and other prophets took a turn for the better yesterday, when the much-mentioned speech said to be involved in Hitler's speech to the German Reichstag, passed off without fireworks.

There was lengthy reference to the question of colonies. There was a note of defiance in the warning to Democracy that Germany will settle her dispute with the world on her own way. But there was evidence little of that spur-jingling and heel-ringing Hitler who boldly and arrogantly defied the world in his address in the Sports Palace just prior to Munich—Vancouver Sun.

Democracies Together

There will be no peace in Europe with respect to the English or French purchase of planes in this country. Rather will there be applause that our laws permit the collaboration of American skill with the needs of these old allies of ours. But there should be, in our judgment, an immediate and unanimous pacific viewpoint with respect to this collaboration, to the emergency in which the democracies of the world find themselves. Isolated co-operation is not enough in crisis. These must be several expressions of international goodwill and a sensible effort to develop not only unity of military plans but a unity of policy throughout the democratic world. All signs point to an increasing tension in Europe and the approach of war. We must, however, remain alert to the effects of Hitler's policies on the world.

It is the Calvinist tenet, "Pierre cast about him for some new work in life. Journalism seemed to be the least unattractive of several alternatives, so he became a reporter. Since then his work abroad for the New York World, the Toronto Star and as a freelance journalist has made him famous." He is right. You will find it all set out in this partly volume of 520 pages, "Days of Our Years," published by Hillman-Curti at $3.50.

IF YOU saw the Eskimos in action Saturday night as they handed the Turner Valley Oilers a 6-2 defeat, you'd agree that Coach Clem Loughlin had his boys stepping at a pace that was plenty fast enough to lead them into the league playoffs. There was no fluke about that victory—such a thing just doesn't get. While the whole club was playing its right kind of hockey, in the big punch that followed, the Eskimos did what tipped the scales for Edmonton.

It's too early yet to figure how the last three or four clubs in the Alberta League will finish, but if the Eskimos can continue to play the sort of hockey they did here Saturday night they are almost certain to make a playoff push. The club seems to have finally found itself during the last week. If that is right, then they should be able to set the league on fire with their dash down the home stretch.

Tonight the Eskimos are playing the League-leading Leafs in Lethbridge. They won on their last trip to Lethbridge and they weren't playing as good as they were then as they are now. A win tonight would put a lot of new enthusiasm in the fans around here.

Maple Leaf Club Produces

IF YOU want hockey players for the future—in team lots or even by the gross—just leave it to the Maple Leaf Athletic Club of Edmonton. Comprising a group of sport-minded men who believe in developing home talent, the Maple Leaf Club has organized a youth hockey organization which is growing. These youngsters are spread over one junior class, one juvenile, one midget, three bantams and two smaller outfitts.

What is more, the Leaf organization is getting results. The junior, juveniles and midgets are in the city playgrounds while the three bantams are at the top of the City Bananam League.

Maple Leaf juvenile and midget club have won the city championships in their divisions for the past two years. This year six of the players on the junior team are still young enough to play juvenile. If they were to drop down to this classification, they would probably bring the juvenile title to the Maple Leaf Club.

It looks as though the Maple Leaf Athletic Club is entitled to its claim that it is the operating the largest hockey machine in western Canada.

Rounding Up Strays

REVEREND JACK GODDARD of Delburne, chaplain of the Alberta Curling Association, pulled the best stunt that the annual bonspiel produced—and it produced some honeys. With impressive oratory and fitting ceremony, he presented George Leigh with a little black book. The cover announced the title as "What a Skip Can Teach His Team." Inside, the skipper found a short history of curling and about the fact that the title intrigued him greatly. When he opened the precious volume he found every page was a total blank. That's one book that lived up to its title.

Emilie Martineau, the Denver light heavyweight who fought Eddie Wenstrom here recently, is coming to the Colorado mental hospital to undergo an operation in a Denver hospital. No details are given beyond the fact that the break-down came when he was training to defend his Colorado-Wyoming title early in February. His case was passed on by a board of psychiatrists. Incidentally this medical tribunal gave his age as 25 years—the age he gave here and which was laughed at by many of the boys around town. Martineau had a hard time getting into the hospital. The reason did not say whether or not his condition is a result of recent blows to the head... a spot where Wenstrom landed a number of hand punches.

Wenstrom arrived back from Vancouver on Friday night. He is taking a few days off after his win over Lorenzo Pedro in Vancouver. He is not just certain when he will fight next. He is awaiting developments on the proposed bout between himself and John Henry Lewis in Seattle and also on a proposition to fight in New York.

Intermediates, Midgets, Juveniles Clash Tonight

A HEAVY hockey program is billed at two Arenas tonight. A with Varsity and Civic Intermediates featuring at the Varsity stadium and the midget and juvenile semi-finals—billed for Arena ice.

Varsity is a strong squad tonight as they drop over the boards to take on the Civic. The Civic is the team that won the semi-final game in the juvenile competition and the Civics will give the students that position. Coach Stanislawski and his team will need to find a fast stepping squad with speed and fine combination featuring their play.

On the other hand the Civics are ready to put all of the stellar power of their team to pull off a victory. The stage is set for a stiff battle at the south side stadium.

Midgets open the arena program. The Maple Leaf will tangle with the Eskimos in a battle of the best-of-two series and will start at 8 p.m. sharp.

The juveniles, Maple Leaf and Canadians, open their semi-final series at 8:30 o'clock. This is also a best-of-two series and the Civics are leading the series with a final of six points, while Frost had five.

Gradettes' shooting was just under the 50 percent mark.

The Civics were 24-17, while the 80 field goals. Varsity was 20-18.

The juveniles, Maple Leaf and Canadians, open their semi-final series at 8:30 o'clock. This is also a best-of-two series and the Civics are leading the series with a final of six points, while Frost had five.

TRAIL RETAINS WORLD HOCKEY CROWN FOR CANADA

Maple Leafs Take Lead Junior Semi-Final Series

MAPLE LEAFS skated hand in hand with lady luck at the arena Sunday afternoon, and because they capitalized on every break afforded them they triumphed 3-2 against Canadians in the opener of the semi-final junior hockey series. It is a best-two-of-three series to decide the team to meet E.A.C. for the city championship. The second game will be played Wednesday.

Ed Allard's Leaflets had to come from the bench, but the potent Canadian attack in the first few minutes of the game gave the Canadians a 1-0 lead.

Only two seconds remained in this frame when Carrriere of Leaflets sifted through the play and scored his second goal.

BEST-OF-THREE SERIES

A overtime period took its toll. Leaflets in the final frame still trailing by one goal. It was near the end of the session, and with Canadians playing sound defensive game, the puck lay loose and Joe Duthak drove a shot at Tullock from away over the Canadian line. The puck hit the post and went back to knock it down. The puck was knocked down but drizzled across the ice and scored the Leaf goal of the game.

Both teams turned on the pressure in the third period. Both Black and Shampier missed golden opportunities to send Canadians to the off-side line, but one big shot beat the Leaflets.

Sixteen seconds remained in regular time when Carrriere tapped in a loose puck from the Canadian cage. Joe Duthak was given an assist this pair of Carrriere and Tullock forced all the points for the Leaflets.

MAL CARRIERS

While Carrriere and Duthak carried the ball, for Leaflets, Black and Shampier did the same for the Canadians. They tallied on each in the opening period.

Maple Leaflets were beaten 1-0 in the second period. They led many raids on the Canadian goal and only had three saves on the hard nosed shorthanded Leaf.

In the Leaf cage also had a great day. He stopped black, Colly and Shampier in their tracks. No player was outstanding on the forward line. However, the star of the show was the Leaf's junior. The Leaflets well taken care of and even watched.

La Salle, Y.M.C.A. Win Table Tennis Matches with Ease

The "W" team got back into action this week and by taking a one-sided decision from Bob Oldfield moved into second place in the League. La Salle and Oldfield are both winning over by large scores thereby keeping in front of the pack. Their victim this week was Westmount who could only nick the league leaders for three points.

The "W" team functioned perfectly in spite of the antics of "One Man Winter" and all the games were won by a wide margin. The ladies from Partick Hills have yet to taste defeat and are leading the pack.

Members are asked to note the change in schedule this week. There are no games for the E.A.C. as the E.A.C. are taking over the club for the night. Triplets headed will be played nearly every night so please come along.

Following are the results of last week's games:

Feb. 10—La Salle vs. Y.M.C.A. 12-0. Feb. 11—Oldfield vs. Westmount 10-0. Feb. 12—La Salle vs. Government. Open phones 6-1. La Salle vs. Oldfield, Feb. 13—Westmount vs. Y.M.C.A. 12-0. Feb. 14—Sims "A" vs. Y.M.C.A. 12-0.

THEATRE

The theatre is made up of Shakespeareans, experimental groups, modern playwrights who are said to have among them all who have written before them experimental groups and Shakespeare.

Theatregoers are able to remember the plays presented as better than formerly. This is shown by the fact that whereas formerly they could not get a seat now they change only during the crucial scenes.

A play is divided into three acts. In the first act is the hero. In the second act he gets a dirty deal. In the third act, he gets his innings or the show winds up in a comedy week.

The theatre is said to have more money than it used to have, though provoking. People find this very attractive place to discuss in between the feature picture and the newsreels.

Higher Education Should Be Aided Professor Avers

—By William Ferguson

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—Without entering any constitutional conflict with the provinces over their control of education, Canada's national government could and should aid higher education by scholarships and grants to selected universities.

Dr. J. W. McCallum, professor of neurology at McGill University, told the Canadian Club here Saturday, that the federal government can believe that higher education is receiving adequate or even comparative support.

"The young are thronging the gates of Canadian universities," he said. "They want to train themselves to play hockey," he asked. "Mine, the minimum view, chance favors the prepared mind, as Pasteur said."

WOMEN WANT BEAUTY! By Louise Holmes

CAST OF CHARACTERS
SUSIE LAMBERT: She served wafers and dreamed of being beautiful. DICK: His wife was a beauty queen but he couldn't see Susie.

SUSIE: She wanted to make Dick's wife as beautiful as she wanted to be.

Yesterday: Susie says goodby to Dick. Today: Susie says goodby to Dick sends flowers to her, but they are not needed.

CHAPTER III

SUSIE trod home that night, the box of violet clutched to her breast. The flowers had been one Dick's. She gently knew she knew it, but such a beautiful gesture. To Susie, who has received so little in her life, who asked so little, Dick's vision assumed the proportions of a major event.

Dreams were their tremulous way across her mind, dreams of conquest or future happiness. Next to the violet, Susie was inspired by a bunch of long-stemmed violets and Dick's sincere, "You know I'm not as good as Susie." He had given her a precious little something to hug to her hungry heart, a moment of bliss to treasure in the end of the day.

She climbed the stairs to her single room. Putting the violet in the box, she closed her fingers and dimly she touched them tenderly. With her eyes on the flowers, she undressed, and lay down in her clothes with a great sigh of relief. She was tired, her feet hurt, her limbs ached, and she throbbed with an exultant song.

Knowing that the moment would soon come that she would be followed by death, she deliberately clung to the rapture, spreading it thin, isolating her small hour to the end.

Over a clean cotton nightdress she pulled a kimono. Stepping into it, she lay down again, clutching heavily to the chair before the flowers.

"It's like me," she whispered. "He's not only sorry—he likes me. He'll wear the tie clip and—." Suddenly she was weeping, clinging face buried in arms, her head buried in her shoulders, her limp hair sagged forward.

"Oh, Susie, Susie, it isn't fair. If you must make some of your women honest you should remember that I'm not a girl."

After a moment Susie looked more than 30; she was scarcely 22, an unhappy girl who was given the urge to attract men by the means of attraction.

Rising her face, she gasped over the flowers into a mirror, lost herself for a moment in a desperately real dream of what she might be like if she had been beautiful. Suddenly, the old unhappy Susie was gone and in her place was a new girl, a girl who was beautiful. After a moment Susie looked more than 30; she was scarcely 22, an unhappy girl who was given the urge to attract men by the means of attraction.

"On the last day of my honeymoon I'll give all the rest of my life to that, to be pretty, oh just for one year, to have Dick just like when she cried in his arms.

The dream lasted only for a moment, but the suffering it had caused him and aloud Susie heard herself saying.

"On the last day of my honeymoon I'll give all the rest of my life to that, to be pretty, oh just for one year, to have Dick just like when she cried in his arms.

At last she would take a cup of tea, sit at the piano behind a screen. With it she ate a sugary pecan roll. Too many waffles too much bacon, too many eggs, too many apples and green things, had long been responsible for Susie's girth and the passing of time. Susie enjoyed the roll, taking little sips of tea, she regarded Dick's flowers.

Outside, the soft spring dusk melted into mysterious night and Susie's mind turned back to the day. She was alone, but she first came to the waffle shop. She remembered her first impression of him, how he had been dressed, looking pink showing through the healthful air he breathed.

Inside, the soft spring dusk melted into mysterious night and Susie's mind turned back to the day. She was alone, but she first came to the waffle shop. She remembered her first impression of him, how he had been dressed, looking pink showing through the healthful air he breathed.

"We can't wait on you not looking at her," the fraternite is having a dance Saturday night at the house.

Premier Plays Falsities in East Speeches onto, Ont., enclosing a clipping from Oakville, Ont., under the caption "Report Alberta's Wears of Ashes" and in which he had stated: "I am willing to vote for any change declarer speaks."

He had also written and read the newspaper item so that you may know how some of our people talk when they go out of our province. Here's a bit:

READS REPORT

Taking the clipping he premised and said as follows: "Oakville, Jan. 31—Conditions in Alberta are worse if anything under the Alberta government, J. F. Steeves in charge of a United church mission in Oakville and the Young People's Society of St. John's United Church last night."

"The people were sick and tired of the government and voted to vote for anything that might make a change," he said commenting on a local election.

"We will never know the true worth of God under these chaotic conditions," he said. "I am a Hillsboro, Missouri, and Abilene, Tex., asserted.

"The people gave an illustrated address on the work and achievements of his mission in Edmonton. Employment and financial condition he said, was excellent. Most of the people under his supervision are on relief, he was

READS STATEMENT

Commenting on this clipping Premier Aberhart continued: At the bottom of the paper on which the clipping was printed, his Toronto speech was printed. What price Christianity when things are distorted in this manner?

Continuing, the Premier said: "I am told that the Rev. Mr. Stevens asked for a date, and Dick agreed to meet him in Oakville, charge of Beverly Mission Basell Memorial church on 96 street and Dundas Institute, 121 and ave. This was the prophet's home."

"Dick's speech was a most interesting and complex, developed through years of looking on and reading, a fearful knowledge and assurance."

"It is sometimes very amazing if it is not so ridiculous," he added.

ANOTHER DREAM

A friend was telling me the other day of two people he met in Montreal, when they found he was a Christian. One was a man of whom he might expect. Conditions were dreary. Everything was in a chaotic state. The people were sick and tired of the government and very few of them could speak a word of English. The demands were so great that they did not know what to do. They were petitioning the federal government to take over matters and straighten out.

Continuing, the Premier said: "I am told that the Rev. Mr. Stevens asked for a date, and Dick agreed to meet him in Oakville, charge of Beverly Mission Basell Memorial church on 96 street and Dundas Institute, 121 and ave. This was the prophet's home."

"Dick's speech was a most interesting and complex, developed through years of looking on and reading, a fearful knowledge and assurance."

URGES ACCURACY

In the end Habbukuk's cry for accuracy will bring salvation to us. At first he was to bring the matter in wrath, now he preaches for mercy. In wrath remember the severity and in mercy the gentleness of God. His answer was received not the one he had expected and he was greatly surprised when he answered him that: "The unrighteous shall not ultimately prevail for he is not upright in him, but the just shall live by his faithfulness."

CRY FOR VENGEANCE

In the end Habbukuk's cry for accuracy will bring salvation to us. At first he was to bring the matter in wrath, now he preaches for mercy. In wrath remember the severity and in mercy the gentleness of God. His answer was received not the one he had expected and he was greatly surprised when he answered him that: "The unrighteous shall not ultimately prevail for he is not upright in him, but the just shall live by his faithfulness."

ATTEND WAKE SERVICE

The body of Verigin was started Thursday night on a trip to Grand Falls, P.E.I.

The Doukhobors, faithful to their historic Christian sect, and representing every colony of Doukhobor in the world, are gathered for the wake service. They sing mournful chants, psalms and hymns, and intoned to expressions of faith by Willard, a Doukhobor singer.

With his father, Verigin as many older members of the sect as possible.

WAKE SERVICE

All during the day, those taking part abstained from partaking of food or drink. On a small table stood a simple cross, a candle, bread and water, symbolic of life.

Although the date of the funeral was not known, Verigin was to be buried beside his father, Peter Lordy Verigin, at Brilliant, B.C.

After the funeral a six-week period of silence is observed.

During this time a commemoration ceremony will take place.

Paris Expels Three Nazi Newsmen

PARIS, Feb. 13.—The arrest of three German journalists, ordered by French authorities and the expulsion of 26 German diplomats from France, was ordered by German ambassador Count Johann von Weizsaeck to visit the foreign office.

He said that he had received a letter from the president of Thiersian Social Credit group to their fellow-diplomats of Alberta, asking them to leave.

Continuing, the premier said: "Two factors are required to fulfill our spiritual calling: persistence or like you like perseverance, spread these falsities about his own country."
